Oct. 2nd	312	12mo. ...	1st ...	2,000	Printed	2 4 0	Jadunáth Mu. kharji, L.M.S., 160, Bowbazar Street, Calcutta.	This is the second volume of the work of which the first volume was noticed in the catalogue for the second quarter of 1882 (see non-educational Bengali book No. 372). The diseases treated of in this volume are chronic bronchitis, pneumonia, chronic pneumonia, pleurisy, and diarrhoea. The causes, symptoms, diagnosis, and treatment of these diseases are fully and clearly explained in a style which is perhaps even more easy, idiomatic, and popular than the style of the first volume. The work is intended for family men and village practitioners.	912
Sept. 30th	253	8vo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	2 12 0	Mahesh Chandra Ghosh, Calcutta.	Describes some of the diseases of infancy, and their treatment after the homœopathic method.	913
" 19th	140	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 10 0	Hariprasád Chakrabarti, Calcutta.	Describes various kinds of fever and their treatment after the homœopathic method. The author says that fever being now a very common and devastating disease in the villages of Bengal, where good medical practitioners cannot be found, he has prepared this work in the hope that the villagers themselves would be able, with its help, to treat that disease on the cheap and simple method furnished by homœopathy.	914
Aug. 25th	64	8vo. ...	1st ...	501	ditto ...	0 12 0	Basanta Kumár Datta, Calcutta.	In this volume are described the diseases of the male and female generative organs, and of the skin.	915
" 30th	128	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 8 0	Guru Gobinda Sen, Calcutta.	This is "a treatise on hygiene, collected and translated from the original texts of Dhanwantari, a great sage and the first author are (1) the different Indian seasons and their influence on the health of the people, (2) the structure and for medicinal purposes, (5) enumeration and qualities of articles used as food, (6) qualities of liquid substances (10) house making, &c.	916
" 27th	111	8vo. ...	1st ...	500	ditto ..	1 0 0	Keshab Chandra Sen, 72, Upper Circular Road, Calcutta.	Sermons by Babu Keshab Chandra Sen explaining the religious principles of his church and the developments which those principles have recently undergone.	917

Oct. 4th	115	8vo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	1 0 0	Iswar Chandra Sen, Sankráil, Mymensingh.	This work is written with the view of counteracting the prevailing tendency of educated Hindus to adopt sceptical or un-Hindu forms of belief. It describes the fundamental principles of Hinduism in its ritualistic and in its contemplative or spiritual aspect. The necessity of those two aspects or stages and the forms of worship demanded by them respectively are explained. The writer considers the Hindu religion to be the best of all religions and Hindu learning to be the source of all other learning, ancient or modern.	919

Oct. 2nd	110	8vo. dy.	1st ...	700	ditto ...	0 12 0	Chandra Kānta Tarkālankār, Sherpur.	This is a treatise on Indian education. The author begins by saying that manners and customs, tastes, and aspirations constitute nationality and are	944
Sanskrit learning to all others, and were therefore able to retain their nationality. Under the British rule they are of foreign habits, manners, tastes, &c. But Hindus do not require new habits and manners; they simply want to Hindu society in Sanskrit books. It is, therefore, the duty of the English Government in India, as well as of all truly that which is occupied by English studies. But Indian education should not be purely intellectual; it should have male teachers in female schools are condemned as anomalous and improper. Zenana schools are said to have existed Hindu student very much to the discredit and disadvantage of the latter. The author thinks that the true love and respect for riches.

Aug. 27th	9	12mo	... 2nd ...	1,000	Printed	0 1 0	Brahmo Samaj Mission Office, 6, College Square, Calcutta.	The sage Nārada is represented as relating to Vyāsa how religious faith first sprang up in his mind, how it grew in depth and intensity, the manner in which he realized for a moment the nature of the Deity, how he had to free himself by patient and prolonged discipline from gross desires and inclinations, and how after doing all that he was able to give up his gross body, assume a new and purer and subtler body, and fill himself full of the real and ecstatic vision of Hari. The author's object is apparently to indicate the process of spiritual culture.	1743
Sept. 8th	16	8vo.	... 1st ...	2,500	ditto	Nil.	Krishna Gopāl Bhakta, 15, Gopi Krishna Pāl's Lane, Calcutta.	This is the prospectus of a scheme framed by the author for republishing in a serial form the eighteen principal Purāṇs with a Bengali translation.	1744
Oct. 1st	48	8vo.	... 1st ...	500	ditto	Nil.	Bihārīlāl Majumdar, Nebutālā, Calcutta.	This is a letter addressed to the Vaidya community of Bengal. It is written with the view of shewing that the recent conversion of Surendranāth Barāt to Christianity by the Rev. K. S. Macdonald was not a case of fair and sincere conversion, and that Surendra Nāth has not therefore committed anything for which he must perform Hindu expiatory rites, in order to obtain readmission into his community.	1745

Sept. 2nd	91	8vo.	... 2nd ...	1,000	ditto	0 8 0	Shashibhushan Basu, Dacca.	The whole of the Tipperah caste question is reviewed and evidence is adduced to shew that the Tipperah raj family is Hindu and not non-Aryan.	1747
Sept. 30th	59	12mo. dy.	1st ...	500	ditto	0 2 0	Kailash Gobinda Gupta of Bāshi, Tāngail.	The author says that he has in the poems contained in this volume described the thoughts and sentiments of a manager of a Hindu family, who has been deeply involved in debt for the sake of his co-parceners, and whose disinterested services to the family are now returned with their ill-feeling and ingratitude. The author seeks to teach his countrymen that where the income of a family is smaller than its expenditure, all its principal members should get themselves employed abroad, leaving the management of their domestic affairs in the hands of a person who is unconnected with them.	1748
Oct. 1st	36	12mo. dy.	1st ...	700	ditto	0 3 0	Ramānanda Gupta, Sayādgāon.	Four poems written by a school-boy. The first poem contains a prayer to God, in the second are described the evil effects of intemperance, patriotic sentiments are expressed in the third, and in the fourth and last Bengalis are called upon not to cast a slur upon their ancient good name by indulging in the cruel practice of slaying sheep and goats before their gods and goddesses.	1749
Aug. 29th	36	12mo.	... 1st ...	500	ditto	0 4 0	Ananda Maitra, Māldah.	Describes the story of the exile of Sitā in a half-lyrical, half-narrative form.	1750
„ 10th	16	16mo.	... 1st ...	500	ditto	Nil	This poem is written at the request of the clerks employed at the office of Messrs. George Henderson & Co. of Calcutta, and gives expression to their grief at the death of Mr. Herbert Knowles, a member of that firm. A brief account of the Indian career of the deceased is given, his honesty and integrity is highly praised, and fervent gratitude is expressed for his uncommon gentleness and kindness to the poor and needy of all castes and communities.	1751

Sept. 16th	42	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	Printed	0 8 0	Girish Chandra Ghosh, 13, Basupará Lane, Calcutta.	Describes the story of a prince who is accused by his step-mother of having made improper advances to her, and is accordingly banished. He meets with various adventures, and ultimately arrives at the Maldivé Islands. His father has in the meanwhile ascertained his innocence and the intriguing nature of his step-mother, goes out in quest of him, and on finding him presses him to return home. He feels glad at his father's discovery of his mistake, but refuses to return home, and goes his way after tearing off the garland which he wore round his neck, and which had become as it were tainted with the impurity of the accusation under which he has so long laboured.	1769
" 29th	48	8vo. ...	1st ...	300	ditto	This little drama is directed against a class of Bengali village Babus who give themselves wise and patronising airs, but are essentially selfish and envious, and delight in fostering village factions, and ruining honest well-to-do neighbours by involving them in inordinate expenditure on the occasion of festivals and other religious ceremonies.	1770
Oct. 8th	25	12mo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 4 0	Baisnab Charan Basák.	An old man, who has married for the third time, cannot account for his young wife's indifference towards him except by supposing that she has formed an improper intimacy with a young man whom he has supported and educated at his residence. His wife, however, confounds him by declaring that she loves the young fellow as her son. He reflects and comes to the conclusion that his wife is chaste, but he himself a little too old to be liked by her. The moral of the story is that persons who are to be united in matrimony ought to be allowed to see and know each other before marriage.	1771

Sept. 17th	216	8vo. ...	1st	1,000	ditto	1 12 0	Baneswar Ghosh and Mohummad Tahir, Calcutta.	A long and rambling story of love in which supernatural agencies play an important part and the element of incred-	69

dibility is very strong. The hero Hurraz takes an ugly oil woman for a princess and marries her, and employs a real princess named Gul in her service. In the end, however, Gul's high parentage is discovered by the exercise of certain charms known only to herself and she becomes the hero's wife; whilst the oil woman, who has given herself out as a princess, betrays her mean origin by her vulgar tastes and proclivities. The moral of the story seems to be that the nature of a person's origin cannot be kept concealed and is generally revealed by his character and conduct.

Aug. 30th	56	8vo. ..	1st ..	600	Printed	0 6 0	Dwijendra Náth Tagore, 6, Dwá-raká Náth Tagore's Street, Calcutta.	The summary account of Ibn Batuta's travels is continued. The writer of a critique on Michael M. S. Datta's Meghnádbadh Kábya is of opinion	714 that that poem does not come up to the standard of an epic or mahákábya . A Bengali apprentice on a tea-garden in Cachar describes how coolies are treated by their masters. He is of opinion that they are not yet very kindly treated. Another writer explains the attitude of poets towards the social opinions and usages of their time. An interesting paper appears in this number, in which various lines of industry are pointed out and described as being exceedingly well fitted to afford independent occupation to the people of this country.
Oct. 10th	96	8vo.	1st ..	600	ditto	0 6 0	ditto	The writer of another critique on the Meghnádbadh Kábya says that there is not much true	715 poetry or high development of character in that poem. But the author of the poem has undoubtedly done a great service to Bengali literature by his introduction and use of blank verse. The dates of the three Baisnab poets, Chandidás, Basanta Ráya, and Bidyápati are discussed in another paper. The interesting paper on independent industrial occupations for the people of this country is continued. An account of the political principles of Russian Nihilists is also given.
Aug. 27th	8	1st ..	2,000	ditto	A new journal apparently intended for the exposure of what is considered by the writers to be	716 current Bengali vices, follies, failings, &c. The tone of the journal is one of vulgar levity, and its style essentially low.

Oct. 13th	32	8vo.	1st ..	600	ditto	0 4 0	Jogendra Náth Sádhu, Jorá-sáńko, Calcutta.	The writer of the opening article assigns several causes for the absence of industrial enterprise and independence among the	722 educated people of this country. Early marriage, the family system, want of capital, and want of union are considered to be the chief causes. Articles of scientific interest predominate in this journal.
Sept. 16th	8	8vo.	1st ..	600	ditto	Nil	Band of Hope, 21, Beadon Street, Calcutta	This is a temperance journal. This number contains a short article in which Mr. Rivers Thompson is exhorted to abolish the outstill system.	723

The writer of the opening article advocates free trade, but thinks that Lord Ripon's tariff policy is marked by partiality to Manchester interests. In another paper the chief faults of Bengali authors, readers, and reviewers are pointed out.	734
" 26th	24	8vo. ...	1st ...	1,000	ditto ...	0 4 0	ditto ...	Contains an article on Bidyádhara, a Bengali Pandit, who lived in the court of Jey Sing of Jeypore, and planned that beautiful city. In another paper fears are expressed that high education in this country may in all probability be made over to Christian missionaries. It is earnestly hoped, however, that that will not be done. Another writer says that it has become necessary for the future prosperity of India that Hindus and Muslims should forget their old animosity, and become one in thought and feeling.	735
